Law Of Attraction The Universe Provides

Master St. Germain ...

The topic for this month is the Law of Attraction, with its corollary that the universe provides. This is a fertile topic. I am glad it has come up.

The moment we speak of providing, we immediately get into the concept of need – need being “lack of.” What you need, the universe provides. What you lack, the universe provides. This is somewhat different from the Law of Attraction. They are two separate functions that operate in an interwoven manner. The underpinning assumption is usually that you set out to attract what you need, which is something you lack.

This does not, of itself, imply that you attract whatever you focus on simply because you focus there. You see, attraction is going on all the time. You are, in essence, a walking magnet. I choose to explore the “universe providing” aspect of this weaving.

Now there is a difference between the universe provides, and the universe reacts. This difference must be taken into account, because the universe reacting is a corollary of cause and effect. The universe reacting is an example, a manifestation, of your thought-form building. You cannot separate the Law of Attraction and the universe providing from the thought-forms that you are creating all the time, and the fact that you create the universe in which you live. I shall call it your personal universe.

Now your personal universe may be considerably smaller than the cosmic universe, but it is your universe. Your personal universe is where your energy, your interests, your observations, your awareness, your consciousness begins and ends. And it doesn't end like a drop-off, it simply diminishes slowly. So when we say the “universe provides,” the question is are we talking about you and your personal universe, or are we talking about the cosmos and the cosmic universe? Those are two different perspectives on the universe.

The cosmic universe provides for all of its inhabitants. It is, in different words, the One Creation. Everything that the inhabitants of Creation need, or could possibly use, is provided within this Creation. Therefore, the cosmic universe provides. But let us return and address the concept of providing from the perspective of your personal universe, for that is where you spend your time and where you perceive whether or not something has been provided.

The thought-forms you build around you are what you, from the inside, send into this personal universe space. So if you send into this personal universe space anger and hatred and doubt and fear, that is the universe you are creating.

Now what is this universe providing? You are creating this universe. What you create feeds back and you become the one who provides. What you send out, and what you send out strongly, starts intersecting with other peoples' personal universes. We are all One, and now you create together.

These intersecting personal universes may be layered vibrationally, as it were, stratified so that the happy ones are here and the angry ones are there. Or it may be that you are cross-pollinating or cross-contaminating. You can pick your word.

We are dealing with vibration rates. And if you resonate at a lower rate, be it self-pity, be it worry, be it anger – a lower vibrational rate – and you meet someone creating a high vibrational rate, someone cheery and happy, there is irritation between the two of you.

Now how do these two different vibrational rates within the One harmonize?

That is, in part, up to you. The universe provides. You are creating your personal universe and that personal universe is providing you feedback. In the case of someone with grumpy, low vibrations meeting someone with cheery, high vibrations, the feedback is irritation. And is this irritation an attraction? Is this grumpy individual attracting a reason to be grumpy? Or is this cause and effect?

I would make the case that this is cause and effect, because one of the two is creating a personal universe filled with joy and compassion and concern, which are high vibrational experiences. The other is creating a personal universe with something that is at a lower vibrational rate. And what you surround yourself with in your personal universe is what the cosmic universe must transit in order to provide you anything.

The stronger you insulate yourself in your personal universe with the lower anger-hatred-vengeance-greed vibrations, the more difficult it is for the God Spark within your personal universe to manifest its higher vibrational capacities. And the more difficult it is for the universe without – be that the personal universes of everyone you meet or the cosmic universe – to penetrate and raise your vibration.

These are simply facts.

We have been through, last month, the many gods and asked the question what is it these gods provide that human beings cannot also provide? It is a question to be considered.

So I would point out to you that when you ask the universe for this, that or the other thing, it would be well to ask yourself what kind of partnership you have with the universe, the broader cosmic universe? What are you doing in your personal universe that makes it easy for the cosmic universe to fulfill your request?

If you ask for a job and do no hunting for a job, or preparing for a job, or arranging your life so there is room for a job, then it is more difficult for the universe to provide a job, because your personal universe is not set up to receive what it is you have asked for.

There are many different ways of expressing that very same idea. I will leave it at that.

The universe does provide. Your personal universe provides and the cosmic universe provides, but you must be prepared to receive. You partner with the cosmic universe through the God Spark within, through your personal universe and the context of the personal universe that you create.

The universe does provide, so long as your God Spark within – the unique part of the Creation that is you – is partnering with the cosmic universe and giving to the total of Creation what it has agreed to give in pre-life planning, what has been agreed upon, what the intentions are, what will benefit the whole, be that nothing more than patience in a checkout line, and an uplifted attitude in a long wait situation at the doctor's office, or a smile to a stranger on the street.

If you are partnering with the One to the best of your ability, and realize that it is One, then the universe, as a partner in providing, has an entry. You create your own personal universe. And that personal universe is part of the One. How you partner with the greater cosmic universe in your actions, in your attitudes, in your spirituality – and we have been through definitions of spirituality – that will give you an idea of how easy it is, or how difficult it is for the universe to “provide” what it is you are asking for.

Remember always, that what you are asking for may not be within your soul intentions and the plan you have made for this life, and those intentions and that plan will take precedence. That is another essay.

That is what I have to say on this matter. I will let others address other aspects of this reader's question.

I thank you.

I would speak to the Law of Attraction. I have said much about the Law of Attraction. There is a magnetism that holds things together, and pulls things together, and whether you call it the binding system of the One Creation or the Law of Attraction, it does not matter.

We do go through life, through an incarnation – and I will talk about the Law of Attraction in the between-life state as well – but as an incarnated being, envision yourself as a walking magnet. Now, I think you can see the picture. You draw to yourself like-minded – like-vibrational – capacities.

A magnet has no influence on paper. A sheet of paper is not drawn to a magnet. A leaf, organic matter in general, is not drawn to a magnet. Now why is that? I will leave that question and come back to it.

On the other hand, something metallic is most definitely drawn to a magnet, and the more powerful the magnet, the quicker the attraction.

Now we have covered several things and that is enough to setup a very long dissertation on attraction.

Let us first take the magnet and the piece of paper. Why is it the magnet does not attract the piece of paper? They are all part of God's One Creation. Why does not the magnet attract the piece of paper? Now we certainly know that static electricity can keep pieces of paper clinging together, but a magnet is of no use. Why is that?

For an answer, let us talk about properties and vibrational rates. Let me posit that there is a basic vibration in the magnet that attracts a similar vibration, a complementary vibration, in the metallic material. There is no complementary vibration in an ordinary piece of paper.

And I would ask you, if you take something as simple as a refrigerator magnet, does the magnet attract the refrigerator? Or does the refrigerator attract the magnet?

I would tell you that the refrigerator, with its mass, is attracting a very small magnet. If you have a very large, powerful magnet that would probably not fit in your kitchen, it would attract and move the refrigerator and bring refrigerator to it.

Magnetism, you see, is the attraction between two, and when one is more powerful than the other, be it through mass or enhanced strength, the one becomes the attractor and the other becomes the attracted. If this magnet is small enough to carry, but made very powerful by technological means, would it be possible that it becomes so powerful it could pull your refrigerator out of its place? Or open your refrigerator door from a distance?

I am fishing for an answer of “yes,” and with that we have covered the strength of this magnet. And I shall call “magnetism” the combined attractive strength of a magnet and that metallic substance shaped into a refrigerator that exerts an attractive force all its own on a small magnet. And when they come close enough, it is the magnet that moves to the refrigerator, not the refrigerator to the magnet. I think I have made that clear.

Now this is what the Law of Attraction is doing. This is what you are doing as you are now a magnet walking through your incarnation. Let us just say you are a powerful little horseshoe-shaped magnet. That is one common shape. And you have a north pole and a south pole and all these things that magnets have. You are a little horseshoe-shaped magnet, and you are walking through life. What do you attract to you?

You do not attract paper. You do not attract trees. You might attract a nail that has been pounded into the tree, but not the tree.

All this is attraction on the physical plane. Rather than a horseshoe-shaped magnet, you may be a walking bronze sculpture. And as that field of metal, what are you going to attract? As you pass by a little magnet on a magnet board, you will attract that.

If you have tried to pry a little refrigerator magnet off the refrigerator door, you know there is an attraction. So you see, you have a magnetism no matter which way you are.

All right, this is all vibrations. I have talked about magnetism. But remember static electricity and the field that is generated between two pieces of paper, or if you are doing your laundry, between something that is silky, a silky blouse, and another piece, let us say wool socks, in your dryer. That is also attraction, but at a totally different level. It is attraction, but it has a different cause.

All of this is by way of saying you have a personal vibrational structure, and that personal vibrational structure can be changed.

Imagine, if you would, a continuum of spiritual maturity with a beginning, an entry point to spiritual maturity, and an ending point to spiritual maturity, which is reunification with the Divine, total reunification with the Divine. And on that continuum, your magnetism capacity, your attraction capacity, is five notches. And you start out, as a soul with five notches, at one end – and I don't care if you move left to right or right to left on this continuum. So wherever you start, you have five notches, and as you mature spiritually, those five notches move – move away from the beginning point, closer to the destination. As you change your personal spirituality, and as you mature spiritually, you are raising your vibrational capacity.

You start out with five notches of attractive force, and even though you increase your vibrational capacity as you mature spiritually, you still have only five notches. Life after life, you and your five notches move closer to your spiritual destination. Along the way, what you attract with those five notches will change as your vibrational capacity changes.

So every time you incarnate, you have five notches of attractive force. I will use a general term, not magnetism. You have five notches of attractive force personally. You are going to use that attractive force, and what you will attract is something complementary to the personal attractive force that you are. That is what you will attract to you.

I think I will leave it at that, and ask you to think about your own personal attractive force, and what it is you are attracting into your life, and what you are attracted to, because attraction is a two-way street. Remember the refrigerator magnet? It may be the refrigerator drawing the magnet. Yet if the magnet is a different, more powerful kind of magnet, still using magnetism, the magnet will move the refrigerator to it.

Think of this, and ask yourself what are you attracting to you? What are you attracted to? How is this Law of Attraction working in your life? And what is it you would do to change what you are attracted to, and what is attracted to you?

I would say that change is part of your spiritual maturation, and you have the ability to change what you are attracted to and what is attracted to you. That is within your control, in your personal universe, as you reach, and touch, and communicate with the Spark of God within.

That is I would have to say.

Thank you very much for allowing me to speak on this panel.

Master Kuthumi ...

Our first speakers have spoken very much on a personal level, and what the Law of Attraction means to you, personally, and how the “universe providing” is more personal with you as your personal universe. I would like to speak about humanity fitting into this Law of Attraction and how that affects groups of people, and what this Law of Attraction and the concept of the “universe providing” means to groups of people. Let us take that.

If you are walking through your incarnation as a little horseshoe-shaped magnet, as my friend Master Djwhal Khul has posited, and you meet other little horseshoe-shaped magnets, you will discover that you can find a group, all of you being magnets of that ilk. And do you have more strength as a group than you had individually?

Well, analogies break down sooner or later. But let us say that you were attracted to one another and now you have a common purpose. The Law of Attraction brought you together as a group and now, as a group, you address the purpose that drew you together. This purpose does not exist as a physical manifestation, a physical object. This purpose exists on other planes, on the emotional plane, or the mental plane, or both.

The purpose may be a mission that emerged when several souls, in between-life planning, came together as a soul group and said, “Such-and-such is a distortion within the Oneness. We are going to get together when we are incarnate and we are going to address this problem.”

That was between-life planning. Where is the attraction coming from once members of this soul group – let us say a group of five – are incarnate? The attraction is coming from five Sparks of God within, five connections with soul intention that brings this group of five together to address a distortion within the One.

All right, so now we have a group of five committed to addressing this distortion, and we will posit that it is a distortion, that it is unhealthy for the Oneness to have this situation continue. Now this situation can be any number of things. The list for humanity is long. The list is very long. But things are crossed off the list one at a time, and this group of five is taking on this particular distortion. Now, what shall we have for this distortion?

Let us say that this group of five is going to clean up a vacant plot of land, an unused plot of land that has come to be littered – not exactly a dump, a place for unwanted items, but it is severely littered, untended, unloved as a part of Mother Earth. This plot of land is unloved, for whatever reason, and this group of five is going to clean up this plot of land on Mother Earth and plant beautiful growing things, flowers, and encourage the natural flowers to grow and be what they are intended to be.

Attraction brought these five together in the right place. And let us say that in order to do this cleanup, they need some assistance. They need finances, contributions to help them clear the land. They need volunteers to simply walk through this plot of land and pick up the litter that has been left. So what do they do? What do they attract to themselves when they call attention to this plot of land?

Now this is where the vibrational rates of the individuals that have become a group set the tone and the direction. If they, as a group, have a high vibrational rate that equates to a spiritual maturity, what are they going to attract from the universe? From all the other groups? All the other individual universes?

Their message is, "Clean up and restore this piece of land that is distorted." They are a high vibration group. What they are going to attract to them are those who have a similar high vibration. They are going to attract to them others who see and understand that this distortion can be cleared. So what they are attracting to themselves is those with both similar vibrations and a similar purpose as a group.

And if they keep that vibration, that is the vibration they will continue to attract, the vibration of healing.

If that vibration sinks, sinks into anger and accusation and frustration, into anger at whoever left that piece of equipment in this place, at whoever tossed this stray piece of paper or candy wrapper in this place, if they become angry, then their vibrational rate lowers. And what is going to happen when it lowers? That, then, is going to attract more anger. And as you attract more anger, what is going on? Like will attract like, and this is not the best healing for this plot of land, because this plot of land on Mother Earth has been cleared with anger, rather than with love.

That is what I would say about a broader application of the Law of Attraction and how important it is that you understand the source of the attraction, what your vibrational rate is, and how that vibration reflects the God Spark within. That is what I would have to say.

Thank you,

Bridging. Bridging the institutions that exist and humanity as it exists, bridging to the new institutions with the least damage, the least pain. That is my work. Bridging.

And how does this fit in with the Law of Attraction and the concept of the universe providing?

Well I will start off with a very simple example. The universe may provide warm sun, and the universe may provide gentle rains – warm sun to heat the ground, and gentle rains to moisten the earth, and light winds that the birds may float the airstreams and the bees and butterflies may do their job pollinating flowers. The universe may provide all of this in its harmony, in its very existence and raison d'être. But if you have not planted seeds in that ground, if you, as humanity, have not planted those seeds, then what grows will be what Mother Earth provides by her very nature of being.

Is that the universe? Is Mother Earth the universe?

Well, Mother Earth is her own personal universe, to build on what was said earlier, I will admit that. If you have no partnership with Mother Earth and have not planted these seeds, then the gentlest of rain, the warmest of sun, the mildest of breezes are not going to bring forth anything other than what comes with Mother Earth. So you see, the universe providing is indeed a partnership.

No one just sits back and expects the universe to provide. I hope that is totally clear.

Let us just take a garden plot. And in this garden plot you wish to have tall flowers in back, let us say hollyhocks, and the next tier down, hollyhocks and then some delphinium, and the next tier down you have something else, maybe some chives. And along the front tier, you want a different kind of flower. And somewhere you want some morning glories and along the front, some alyssum. You want this tiered effect for your flower garden and you want different colors.

Now in what way is the universe going to provide this for you? I would ask you, how does that partnership work? You prepare the ground. You may have to fertilize. You have to buy the seeds, you have to plant the seeds at the right depth, at the right time. You probably will do some weeding and, lo and behold! The universe provides the flowers.

Did you do that? Did you provide those flowers? Not by yourself. Did the universe provide those flowers? Not by itself. I would repeat, not by itself.

It was a partnership.

So when we have those who say the universe provides and the universe will provide, this is true. This is true. And the Law of Attraction may well be the Law of Attraction. So suppose you move into a cave, and you determine that this is where you wish to stay, and you build yourself an underground home. And now you want windows, and you want windows on all sides of your home.

You may have brought in batteries and generators for lighting, and your home may be energy efficient, but I would posit that you are never going to have windows on all sides of this underground cave home. No amount of wishing and attracting on your part, no amount of the universe's willingness to provide for you, is going to provide those windows.

On the other hand, if what you wish is a home, a place to live, that has windows on all sides, then your part in the partnership is, first of all, deciding that you are not going to live in an apartment. Very few apartment buildings provide units that have windows on all four sides. So if this is what you say you want, and this is what you wish to attract, and you look for a place to live, and you limit yourself to apartments only, you are not going to attract what it is you are asking for. The universe is not going to be able to provide.

So you see, it is a partnership.

And the same is true, now, in the more serious example of attracting for humanity the new civilization, and that is attracting a path, a bridge, a transition that will bring the most change, with the least pain, to the greatest number of people. And if you set out to do that, and you attract to yourself a group of people who have the right mindset, you can call it spiritual vibration, you can call it mindset, you can call it outlook.

There is no judging. We are not going to spend our time throwing stones at all the people who created what we have, because if you understand cause-and-effect and the laws of reincarnation, your soul may have had a very influential incarnation in creating what it is you are now attracted to correct.

Do not throw stones. It is not a good idea. And I say that with a smile. Remember, you have had plenty of lives. You may have created the mess and that is why you feel so impassioned about correcting it.

It may be that way. For plans to do this kind of bridging are made in the between-life state where those souls are working together and are attracted together for some purpose. I will leave it at that.

Now, you have a group who has been attracted and it is their purpose to envision, to create the vision and share the vision of the new institutions, of the new ways of working. These groups are not theoretical, and their numbers are growing. They are attracting to themselves those who can envision the necessary bridges from what we have now to what better serves the whole. They may focus on a distortion that needs cleaning – I will borrow my colleague's term – a distortion that needs cleaning in this institution, or these rules of governance, or this school-of-thought brotherhood that has become a purveyor of an unhealthy distortion that needs to change, a social practice, a social habit, a way of looking at one another.

They are focusing on all these distortions of Oneness that need to be revised in order to move into the new world, the new civilization where every single incarnating soul has a chance to balance, balance its karmic history and grow spiritually.

Have you been prompted to join or form one of these groups? How you attract has been covered. Do you attract with anger or with love?

And I will tell you that the most binding, the strongest, is that of love. Love has many definitions, none of which I am talking about includes the romance novel. I am not talking about that kind of individual love. I am talking about love for the health of the One Creation, a love that is the same as working together and partnering, complementing one another with skill sets and experiences, and unity in these different skill sets, and different opinions, but unity in the fact that we are moving forward to build better than what we are leaving behind.

And as we build, those institutions that no longer serve the health of the One and the health of the whole are going to be dismantled. And dismantling is a different kind of attractive force, because dismantling is an attraction that pulls the various components away from the integrated whole it has become, and the various components will stand on their own and be attracted to a new whole, as it were.

I will use an example. You have a corporation that has, for instance, a part in its business plan for strengthening the community in which it provides jobs. But that part may be very small, because this same corporation also has a business plan, as part of its function, to produce, let us say, a chemical that has proved harmful to Mother Earth and harmful to the environment. And that is simply part of its product line. Or its manufacturing process pollutes, even though part of its plan is to reinvest in the community.

Dismantling that organization is attracting each of those components away from the whole that is the corporation, so that community reinvestment survives as a concept, as a good and useful and healthful business approach. But pollution and harmful chemical production are dismantled, and the energy that kept those as functioning parts of this corporation is withdrawn, and the component parts simply return to the universe for use elsewhere.

I hope that is clear.

Attraction. The universe provides. Yes, and yes.

But these are very complex concepts and can be applied in a very complex way. In any case, and in every case, humanity is the partner and humanity is the builder, and the implementer, and the one who intelligently dismantles that which is unhealthy, intelligently heals that which must be healed, and intelligently builds that which must be built, all the while being mindful of inflicting the least damage, the least pain, to those who are impacted by this transition.

That is part of the universe providing. The universe is providing a path of the least pain, because those who are doing the planning are listening to their soul intentions, and have compassion, not blame, not stone throwing, but compassion for their fellow human beings.

Thank you. That is what I wish to say.

Lord Maitreya ...

What is it that I would say about the Law of Attraction as it exists in the cosmos? And what would I say about the concept that the universe provides?

The universe is capable of providing. I would have that clear. But, you see, if someone comes knocking on your door and brings a basket of gifts, and you say, "No, thank you," then has the gift been provided? I will leave that question as a question. I think the answer is readily available.

Likewise, if you ask for transportation, you say, "Universe, please deliver me transportation. I need transportation to get from point A to point B, to get from my home to where I work." And you had in mind a luxurious, expensive automobile and what you get is a bicycle.

Likewise, you may say, "I want, I need a red car with four-wheel drive and leather seat covers, and a CD player that takes multiple CDs, and an upgraded stereo system, that I may get back and forth to work," and the universe sends you a bicycle. I would ask, in which case does the universe provide what you need? In which case does the universe provide for you?

I will let you answer those questions. I would like you to think about those questions, and I will add one more. If you get a blue bicycle instead of a red car, what are you going to determine about the universe providing for you? And what does that mean to you?

Questions, questions, questions. I have given you questions.

It is your perception, and your consciousness, and your discernment as to what is truly your need versus your want, that determines whether or not the response must be precisely what you have outlined, or a general fulfillment of the deep necessity, of the actual necessity.

And if your consciousness says, "The bicycle does not fulfill my need," or if you should get a blue car when you asked for a red car, or if you get a very small, humble blue car when you asked a big shiny red car, it is your consciousness, your discernment, to recognize that the universe has provided for you. I will leave it at that.

I would also speak briefly on the Law of Attraction and how the Law of Attraction is related to the universe providing. This has been touched on by my colleagues. I would ask what results you get when you work individually to attract, for instance, a more just form of governance, be it within your local city, village, district structure or be it the state, the national or the international level. Are you more effective as an individual or as a group? Now that is, in essence, a rhetorical question.

How does one become a group addressing an issue like world government, world international relationships? The underpinning of the Law of Attraction, the deepest underpinning, is the attraction that the Divine – the Source, the Creator – has for attracting to itself all the Sparks of itself it has spread throughout the whole of Creation. All those Sparks of the Creator are part of Creation and all those Sparks of Creation are going to return to reunify with the Creator. All of them.

The attraction that exists between the Creator and the Spark of God that resides in each one, is the Law of Attraction that will bring groups together for a common purpose, a purpose that is to the benefit and the healing of the one Creation, and the Oneness in which we live. It is the Law of Attraction that shapes, and is shaped by, soul intentions while planning an incarnation. It is the Law of Attraction that shapes, and is shaped by, free will once souls are incarnate, but it is the mutual attraction of those Sparks of God that begin to pull groups together.

So as these groups band together, they can form a light, a light that heals, a light that leads. I will focus on those kinds of groups. The Law of Attraction is nonjudgmental. Gravity holds all incarnate beings to this planet. It does not pass judgment as to which human beings are allowed to walk on the face of the planet and which are not.

We are One, and I would suggest – I would plead, actually – that you use your discernment, and for every group you join, consult the God Spark within as to whether this group is going to have a healing effect on the Oneness of Creation. Ask how you can use the God Spark within to form that mutual attraction that can lead to common objectives, entered willingly and supported by the energy flow from the soul on its own plane, that your group can become a light that attracts others. The brighter the light, the stronger the core that binds you in light, the more healing you can effect on the physical plane.

That attraction is to each other, soul Spark to soul Spark, God Spark to God Spark. Let that be the binding that creates the lights, that light the path, that brings humanity forward into spiritual maturity as a single unit. You see, many request and pray for peace. The universe has the potential to provide that peace.

The path to that peace is not a simple stroll down an uncluttered path on a sunny day.

The universe has the ability, the capacity, the will to provide that which you ask for when you ask for peace and a better world for your children and grandchildren and the generations to come. And if you allow the Law of Attraction, sourced from the God Spark within, to pull together and attract those with common purpose, each group working in its own capacity to build this new future, then the universe, with its capacity to respond and provide, will be of assistance. And you may have to recognize that if your group asks for a shiny red car with leather seat covers, you may start off with a blue bicycle.

It is up to you whether you recognize that the blue bicycle will enable you to do that which you could not do without it, and recognize the response. And if you get a small blue car, it is up to you to recognize in what way, the small blue car serves the purpose you have set out with your intentions.

This is a two-way street. It requires a two-way recognition. The universe, as it were, recognizing what can be done to meet the stated intention and providing that, and the recipient recognizing what it is the universe is providing. The Law of Attraction is holding all of that together, the universe and those who are doing the asking. The attraction is the bridge of providing. The ultimate attraction is recognizing what has been provided and making good use of it.

That is what I would wish to say.

Thank you,

Master Hilarion ...

There has been much discussion from my colleagues about the Law of Attraction in its various levels and guises and manifestations. And there has been much talk about the universe providing. I would come down on the side of the universe being capable of providing. The capacity to provide is available.

I would say that while the capacity to provide exists, the universe also makes provision for what I shall call a safeguard, that if what is being sought and asked for is simply not appropriate, the universe will provide safety first. The universe has its own rules, we shall say. And if we are getting into the issue of the universe providing anything someone requests strongly enough, providing anything one needs, then we should also consider why it is that this has been requested and what need this fulfills.

Now I am talking all around a subject, and I shall be, now, frank. Before I say more, I would have those not familiar with my biography, as presented here on this site, know that one of my responsibilities is providing my colleagues and superiors with relevant summaries as well as my personal recommendation about what technology is to be released to humanity in what time frame – when, according to various indicators, it would appear humanity is, or will be, capable of receiving in safety what the universe has to offer. I am not unbiased on the issue of the universe providing. This I would have you know.

Anyone, or any group, that is in the hold of a deep-seated anger and vengeance – ancient or new – can cry out that they need the means to destroy their enemy. Does the universe have the capacity to provide for that destruction? I think it is perfectly clear that the answer is yes. But is providing that means of destruction working for the health of the Oneness in which we live, the well-being of the One Creation we inhabit? I would say the answer to that is no.

While the universe has the ability to provide many things, the universe, first of all, will make every effort to protect the Oneness, to protect Creation, and the answer to a request is sometimes, “No.”

One does not freely give a dangerous toy to a child too young to know how to handle it safely. If you are in a litigious society, there can be lawsuits against manufacturers who provide unsafe toys to children. An accident happens and you have a lawsuit. The toy was there. It was freely and of free will purchased. It was freely given to the child, and the child was injured. A lawsuit ensues.

And who is responsible? The manufacturer of the unsafe toy. Not the store that sold it, not the adults who purchased it, not the adults who gave it to the child, but the manufacturer who made it possible. The universe does not want to be in the position of receiving lawsuits. Let us put it that way.

So when what is requested is possible, but has potential danger because of the way it might be used and the destruction that might ensue, what is requested may not be provided. The universe provides. The universe has a safety mechanism of self-protection for Creation. That is my opinion. And part of the work that we do in the Spiritual Hierarchy is to assess the spiritual maturity of humanity and determine whether or not there is sufficient maturity that humanity can wisely manage the next step in technological advancement.

We are elder brothers and elder sisters who have traveled far down the road and see a much broader spectrum, and can understand the dangers and the consequences, and make decisions about what will and will not be released.

That is a simple fact.

I would say, let the Law of Attraction work in your life from a higher spiritual plane and you will find yourself in various swirls of attraction. You may be attracted to that which is for your own spiritual growth, or frankly, that which is for your own spiritual back-sliding. One is an attraction sourced from the soul and the Spark within, and the soul's striving for return and reunification with the Divine.

The other application of attraction, even in the spiritual planes, is sourced from the free will, which can include anger and pain and fear. I will not go into all the causes, there could be many, but attraction sourced from free will is not always healthy for the self or for the whole.

I would urge you, you who are reading this, you who have been called to read this, to be compassionate, to understand, as has been said over and over again, that each of us has a Spark of the Divine within. No matter how deeply hidden, it is there. Work with your own light and find those who have a common purpose working on their lights, and listen to your soul's guidance as to where and what and how you can serve the health and healing of the greater whole. It may be something very small, but even a small light can be very effective when there is no light at all.

A small light can be very effective in attracting those who will also shed their light and create one that is brighter, one that is stronger, a unified light that the universe recognizes as mature enough to safely be given what it asks for.

I think that that is what I would like to say about attraction and the universe providing.

Thank you.
