Your Vision Of Harmony Counts

Master Serapis Bey

How does one harmonize this institution with that institution, all for the benefit of humanity? I would have you take two minutes, that's all, just two minutes. And if you don't have two minutes, take one, and if you don't have one minute, take 30 seconds. Pick any two institutions and ask yourself how you would harmonize one institution with the other so that they worked together more effectively for the benefit of humanity. Please, just take a moment. Stop reading this and give it a go.

I am going to wager that every single one of you reading this found two institutions that you would have harmonize one with the other, that you have a vision of what that harmonized purpose for all of humanity would look like. No, you do not have the details, but you do have a vision and your vision might have to do with education, health care, transportation, food production, distribution, economics or mail delivery.

Political governments might very well be on your list. You have a vision of how any two such institutions could better work together for the good of all humanity. That is what I and my colleagues work with. I am willing to bet that each of you has stumbled one way or another into the reality that these institutions do not work together for the benefit of humanity. Many of them simply do not work within themselves for the benefit of humanity.

So I would have you pick an institution and take this time, just 30 seconds. What would you change if you had the power to change something in one of these institutions, any institution you can name, any change for the benefit of all humanity? What would you change?

At this point I'm willing to bet that those of you who have gone along with my little exercise have had no trouble at all finding something you would change. So you see, my friends, you do have a vision of the new civilization. And when you speak of this vision, speak with as little negative emotional charge as possible, but factual, calm, action-generating positive energy.

That is in the line of dreaming, when you are correcting something, rather than nurturing your anger. Think of it as sharing your dream, sharing your vision. Do this with your friends, do this with your family. Write a letter to the editor or just put something in your journal. Start thinking, without anger, and make it a dream for what can be. Do this and help build the new civilization.

You do have a vision. Your heart tells you what will benefit humanity. Don't keep that silent, share it, share that vision. I think you will be quite surprised what can grow out of that vision.

Do not consider yourselves helpless, because when you create that positive vision and there are three of you who can brainstorm and refine that vision, that dream, then see what you can find out about those who have similar dreams. Don't give up the dream. Open yourselves to what help we might be able to provide as you look stronger and longer and gather now maybe five people who agree with this growing dream.

Let's see what the five of you can do and who you can contact. You are not helpless. Building the new civilization is something you can do, and it starts with a vision.

I thank you.
