

We can prepare the garden and have the teaching space ready, but you must walk through the door.

Master Kuthumi

MasterSpeak

Panel Discussions

Among The Community Of Spiritual Masters
And Our Off-Earth Allies

March 2014

A Hard Look At What's Ahead

THIS MONTH'S PANEL:

THE PANELIST GROUP ...	2
MASTER KUTHUMI ...	5
MASTER MORYA ...	8
THE VENETIAN MASTER ...	12
MASTER SERAPIS BEY ...	15
MASTER YESHUA ...	19
MASTER DJWHAL KHUL ...	21
ARCTAN ...	23
PHILOHSTAN ...	25
MASTER HILARION ...	27
KEN'U ...	29

The Panelist Group ...

This month, we take a hard look at what's ahead. This month's panel discussion is more orchestrated and more organized than we usually do, but you see, there is a great deal ahead for the human family of Earth and we wish to lay it out and lay it out perhaps more frankly than we have done before.

We intend to cover five areas:

- the political institutions,
- the economics,
- the religious and spiritual institutions,
- the displaced of the world,
- and areas of upheaval in the world.

Our panelists have each volunteered to do one specific area of the five, so we have ten speakers, two speaking in each of these five areas.

Now, what we will do by way of introduction is give a general overview because you see, as the new civilization is formed, is designed and built by human hands, there are two ways to go about it.

One is moving through from what exists now to a new civilization without our advice or the information we can offer or the guidance we can offer as you move forward with what you have designed. The alternative, as we most sincerely hope that the leaders within the human family will choose, is to listen to the information we have to offer, hear our advice and then make their decisions. And if we are lucky, they will accept our guidance as they move forward.

The political situations on this planet, the political institutions on this planet, these will be changing because the current political institutions do not support and will not support an environment where the growth and expansion of consciousness, as well as the growth and manifestation of the soul in physical plane matters, becomes a priority.

Now, one might put that succinctly by saying that human spirituality, in its broadest sense, is indeed one of the criteria that must be incorporated into each of these areas, not imposed in any way, but incorporated.

Political institutions, with the exception perhaps of theocracies, do not incorporate the criteria of human spirituality and freedom to follow individual spiritual growth.

Economic institutions are so closely allied to political institutions that it is sometimes even inaccurate to make a distinction. The economy defines the place of every individual in the human family and defines the place of every sovereign state in the human family.

It is not politics per se, devoid of economy, that allocates the place of individuals and sovereign states. It is the economy and politics combined.

The religious and spiritual institutions of humanity today are much too segregated, much too protective of their own views. They do not support dialogue. Dialogue must be introduced, for no one spiritual institution, no one religion, no one approach to spirituality has a monopoly on the truth as it exists, for truths that exist throughout the cosmos have been long-lost, long-lost here on Earth. Much was lost when the race of the Lemurians became so enamored of mastering their physical human bodies that they forgot to bring with them the spiritual lessons that had been learned in more rarefied dimensions, lessons learned before the decision was made to take physical human bodies.

Those cosmic truths that on this planet would be called spiritual or spirituality must be restored. They are truths known to other planets throughout the cosmos, but here on Earth they have been lost or only appear as distorted myths. This must be corrected.

The displaced of the world. One does not need to be physically displaced to end up being displaced. This can be a very cruel displacement because of decisions that are made at the political level, at the economic level, at the spiritual or religious level. The decisions made at those levels create the displaced of the world much more so than do what you would call natural disasters.

Areas of upheaval. Here we have a toss-up. Is the upheaval in the world caused by those souls who are standing up for their freedom, for their creativity, for their inherent rights as Sparks of God to grow in their own way without being oppressed? Or are the areas of upheaval shaped by those who would have power? Are they created by power and greed that is incorporated into the worldview of those who have or grab power?

In some ways it simply does not matter which because these areas of upheaval will be normalized, will be calmed, will be modified so that every member of the human family of Earth is welcome in the environment of Earth and has a place where they can express their inherent divinity, their expansion of consciousness, and grow as a creative soul.

We are emerging to offer information and advice and, once the decisions are made, to offer guidance, we who are further down the spiritual path, we who quite frankly have a much greater knowledge of cosmic truths than is currently available on this planet. But you see, none of the decisions are ours. We have said this over and over again. The decisions belong to humanity and it is humanity who will make the changes. The changes that are needed cannot be enforced from the outside, not even one human being to another. They must be implemented through cooperation and expanded consciousness that activates the heart to know what the right moves are, what the right changes are that will enhance the health of the one human family that exists on this planet.

That is a high and wide overview of what we discuss this month. Now, you may say that you are in no position to make any of these decisions. You are right ... and in some ways thinking too narrowly.

The decisions about which laws to pass or not pass, which laws to change or not change, the decisions about various economic or spiritual decisions might not be yours to make. But you see, you do make decisions every single day of your life. And as we have said, the repair, the sustainable repair of even one relationship enhances the health of the human family of Earth. It does not matter how small and insignificant that relationship might seem in the face of the seven billion inhabitants of this planet, but it is significant. One repair, one sustainable repair, enhances the health of the whole and that is where you can begin to lay the foundation for the new civilization – you, in your own life.

Thank you.

The Panelist Group

Master Kuthumi ...

While there is currently unrest in many places in the world – like in Thailand, Syria and Turkey – there are also countries and organizations actively involved in crisis resolution and in steering the way in trying to resolve the issues. Politics are no longer a matter of country or region, and political institutions are gearing up to intervene on a global scale. The world has changed to the degree that the ways to operate are no longer the same.

Certainly some of these interventions are not welcomed by the government of the country in crisis concerned. However, the fact that organizations like the United Nations no longer look away when crimes against humanity are being committed, when human rights are being violated or when minorities are threatened is a huge step forward.

This action has been a truly ingenious development and represents the best that humanity can be. We have inspired this action for centuries and were most pleased when the process was finally set up to work through the system and actually have outcomes of such balanced thought. In time, we hope to see more such situations treated in this manner. As I said, the times are changing as to how these matters must be dealt with.

These global organizations are spearheaded by groups of leaders who see the bigger picture and will continue to look beyond their own countries' interests.

What emerges here is an example of teamwork to raise awareness and build a balance with local governments and political institutions to end humanity's suffering from the unjust residue of power games.

People all over the world are right now standing up against corruption and ill-motivated leadership. It will become more and more clear that they want to take part in the decision-making process and that they are not prepared to let politicians misuse their powers while representing them. The voice of the people is powerful and has led to the fall of many, many governments over the last few years. This will continue to happen.

But what is next? We are on standby to assist humanity in unveiling the vision of a much better way of governing a country/a region/a city/a village. We wish to be invited to help light the path for you. We await this invitation.

Future leaders are developing right now who will pose a real and sensible alternative to the old ways. This is where we especially see our role – to support these leaders and help them see clearly what they can do and what traps they should avoid to really make a difference. These are young, charismatic, energetic visionaries, who, with their own soul's set-up and the will to cooperate with us Advisors, Off- and On-Earth Allies, can help move forward in a painless and exciting way. These visionaries are being guided by us.

We want to encourage everybody to jump on the bandwagon, to join in to bring real, positive change to your political environment. This does not mean you should run for presidency or get elected as your local mayor if you do not wish to do so. But you can find like-minded people to stand up against injustice with, to form a healthy leadership team with, with only the best for your surroundings in mind, or to help create an opposition that opens an honest dialogue and does not "oppose" just because of the job description contained in the name. Get involved and spread the light. And be assured that we are here to support you when your intentions are good. This is but one way to answer the call.

Some countries in this world are not used to democracy. Democracy is a fairly new concept in history, strongly opposing monarchy or dictatorship as a form of ruling. Yet without a doubt, it should be the concept of the future all over the world. People need to be heard – it is a soul necessity – and they need to understand that they have a voice much louder than any one ruling person or party.

Young democracies everywhere struggle with individuals abusing their power. But citizens all over the world are not prepared to put up with it anymore. They develop a sense of what serves the people and what doesn't. When a government or political institution is abusing its power and acts from a base of dishonesty, people will feel and react to that even more in the future because humanity will be sensitized and feel when there are good intentions or not behind a political organization. It will become more easy to recognize.

Let's face it: politics has been a tough business full of loopholes for abusing power, and unfortunately, in some countries, dishonest people are holding positions, ignoring their soul mission. This is one area where we would like to assist. We seek to be invited by those leaders too so we can hold up a mirror to them and help awaken the compassion in their hearts. We also want to encourage the legally-appointed opposition to bring balance and new ideas in a fruitful collaboration.

We have very little use for the personal affinities and preferences of singular rulers. This is the old manner of ruling. Political institutions with a network or a group of people having a say is more what we want to interact with at this point in time. Interestingly enough, a party of people working together is far more receptive and open to new ideas than a single ruler and his advisors could ever be. So we are counting on groups to get together and move forward.

It is expected that a lot of political parties with unjust ideals will suffer from the upcoming changes. Many will stumble over their own feet, i.e. their corruption, affairs and lies, so that the people will not readily accept them as their representatives anymore in the future. This is necessary and a sign of natural cleansing. Not all of it will run smoothly, and it might temporarily make way for new and even worse leaders or leading groups. But in the long run, the voice of the people will be heard and a new group of leaders is expected to come on stage, one that implements a new format altogether, a good one in our eyes that is already tested.

We hope you will be part of the positive movement forward.

Thank you.

Kuthumi

Master Morya ...

The political institutions of today are bound up in self-perpetuating, self-serving institutions that support the status quo, claim to be concerned about the state of humanity and do a great deal to maintain the power structure that has been in effect.

These political institutions range from the parliaments to the political parties to the lobbyists to the special interest groups who put money into the political system to get their own views elected. They don't care who holds those views, so long as their views are elected with voting power.

These political institutions that claim to serve the common good and the benefit of humanity need a very close examination to determine whether or not the greater good of the One, the greater good of the human family of Earth is being served by the decisions they make and the actions they take.

Now, we have no doubt that there are very well-meaning individuals who enter this political system. There are very good-intended, well-meaning individuals who participate in the political institutions, but the institutions themselves have taken such a hold that it is impossible to say they are truly serving the greater good of this planet's human family. Thus, every single political institution – and we do mean every one – needs to be evaluated, needs to pass muster, needs to prove for the new civilization that it is indeed serving the benefits of the entire human family.

Now, who is going to call these political institutions – be they called commissions or parliaments or congress – who is going to call them to task? Who is going to determine whether or not this special interest group has an undue influence on the laws that are passed? Who is to determine? Who is?

Well, the answer is you.

Until such time as there is an evaluation, a set of criteria that can be used to assess these political institutions, they are going to remain unchanged until they collapse. And that collapse can be in the form of total chaos. Consider the French Revolution. When abuse reaches the point that the masses rise up against the government and the supporting political institutions, then indeed you have havoc and great loss, and the remnants of that great loss contaminate the human family for a very long time.

What is the alternative? Well you see, there is an alternative. There are several alternatives, there are options that can be taken by those in leadership positions. And if those options are not taken, then the danger simply grows worse year by year until the breaking point is reached and that is not necessary. It is possible that the political and economic leaders change course. It does not matter, quite frankly, what form the government and the political institutions take, the structure they take, for there are several structures available.

What does matter above the actual structure is the commitment to serve the greater good of the human family of Earth and the first step in serving that human family is to be aware that there is only one human family on this planet. It is not a homogenous human family and it is not intended to be a homogenous human family. But what is intended is that this human family be served by the political institutions on this planet.

The hard news, the cold hard look at the political institutions on this planet can only lead to the conclusion that they are self-serving and self-perpetuating. There is contention, there are power struggles, there are winners and losers. This is not necessary. There are better ways to provide political institutions that serve the whole, that serve the One, the one human family.

These political institutions are not cookie-cutter replications of one after another. These political institutions can actually enhance the unique cultures in each area, the unique culture of each group of people. This can be done. This can be done with respect and this can be done honoring unique cultures and keeping in mind the service of the whole. And for that you need communications, you need alliances of respect. You need cooperation.

The services we offer are giving you all our perspective on what changes need to be made in the political institutions of this planet in order that these political institutions can begin the modifications necessary to support a new civilization, because there is not one political institution in existence today that can say it serves the new civilization without modification. Some of these political institutions need to be eradicated. Others need a major overhaul and others, more likely the local ones, need to take a look inside themselves to determine how they connect to their local populations and serve their local populations and connect to the larger populations of which they are a part and what that bridging mechanism is.

Internationally, the political institutions need to normalize. What does this normalization mean? It means that power is shared and it means that all shared power focuses on serving the whole of the human family. Legal systems are institutions that support the politics of a region, of a continent, of a country, of the world. These legal systems need to take a look at themselves and the premise on which they are constructed and whether or not they are self-serving, whether or not they support an oligarchy, whether or not they support an autocratic monarchy, whether they support a hegemony. Who do these legal systems support and what criteria are used as they render their decisions? What decisions are they allowed to render given the system they are part of?

You have issues about whether the laws that are formulated apply locally or globally or somewhere in between. Who is it that makes these laws and what do these laws serve? Where is the power? Is that local? How local? What relationships are built to bridge what is local to what, quite rationally, needs to have a broader brush in order to serve a human family that today has, for the most part, mobility and incredible communications capacity around the world? The potential is there.

Political institutions are going to change and if they do not change, the human family of Earth is in for a very difficult, chaotic upheaval. It is not acceptable in the new civilization that the few rule the many. It is important that every political institution – the legal system, the executives, the rulers, the lawmakers by whatever name you call them, the lobbyists and influencers by whatever name you call them – are serving the best interests of the human family.

What are those best interests and how are they determined? That is where communication must take place. Communications must take place to the point where every special interest group who speaks from the heart, that believes that their way is the best way to run a country, a city, a world – that they speak with every other group who says the very same thing: that their way is the best way to serve the human family of Earth. No member of this human family can be excluded as irrelevant, as insignificant.

It is only when those who know, with great certainty, that they have the only way of governing, of passing legislation, of enforcing laws, of influencing legislation, of influencing citizenship, of controlling migrations, emigrations and immigrations, it is only when those who are so very certain that their way is the best way, their way is probably the only way, it is only when these groups begin to speak with one another and discover for themselves what it is they have in common that progress will be made.

And what do they have in common when they look at it? Very likely children. What they do have in common and what they realize they have in common may be two different things. But dialogue to find out what it is that is truly in common for every member of the human family, that dialogue is the one that will lead to the new civilization and alter the political institutions of today.

We are here to offer advice. We are here to provide information as you make the decisions about what political institutions will serve you in the generations to come and in the new civilization that is being designed by you as we speak.

Political leaders have the power to make decisions and whether these decisions move the human family forward, maintain the status quo or, in essence, force a step backwards is an issue to be decided. These decisions are yours. They are not ours. But on the results of these decisions rests the fate of the human family of Earth and do not for a moment think otherwise. Life as you know it is going to change. It is only a matter of how.

That is sufficient. We will do our part to attempt to reach the leaders and make them aware of what they are really and truly deciding.

Thank you.

Master Morya

The Venetian Master ...

I would address some future aspects of the economy and one in particular, which is the changes that will occur in light of the new environmental consciousness that will soon sweep the world. For the environment is common to us all. It is a common concern and a common trust for all of the peoples inhabiting this world. And when all of the people collectively pay attention and respect to the concerns, requirements, needs – some of them dire needs – of Mother Earth at this time, a great renewal will sweep through the planetary biosphere and mind belt which will, in a surprisingly short amount of time, help to redress many of the imbalances in nature and in socio-economic modes of being. So take heart, for once the collective will is applied, much can be accomplished in short measure, especially as our counsel and advice is available to you and will become more prominently so.

Now many are the groups now who are concerned with the environmental sphere, so there is a popular base for these changes to be anchored in, a strong popular base and one which will grow stronger, especially in the hands of youth today, many of whom have come to shoulder this particular cause, for they have long loved their Mother, this Earth, and return now to succour her as any child would in her disarray.

Many are the technological advances quietly being developed for large and small projects worldwide where correctness and sustainability tap into the great riches and abundant forces of Mother Earth. These are very creative uses of Mother Earth's resources, this being a facet of the mind belt that also will come into greater and greater play as the environmental consciousness widens and deepens. It is not only in the big, high-cost mega-projects – many of which are destructive and will need to be retro-fitted, re-directed away from destruction and into a more natural course – it is not only in these mega-projects but in many, many micro-envisionings that great strides, unbeknownst generally, are taking place.

Even less known is a new co-operative venture, often even unrecognized by the major players, between some of the most advanced proponents of high science – very abstract and obtuse mathematics, physics, etc. – many of the most forward minds in these domains who are now beginning to touch the builders of the Devic Kingdom. This may sound surprising but it all unfolds under Law and in due course will become more understood and more accepted for the nature of this collaboration with the Devic Kingdom and its myriad colonies of elementals, the builders of this planetary life. And they can and will link forces with the constructive, building minds of the mathematicians and engineers and architects, the vibratory scientists of all natures, who will gradually touch the edges between realms.

On a more practical level, legislation will be enacted both universally and locally to more and more protect the environment and all its facets, legislation being an understood social reality in society worldwide these days, and that will represent the entrenchment of respect and trust more than ugly tit-for-tat squabbling. Legislation will enshrine the global commons and much will be accomplished in this pedestrian way that more and more human minds today can grasp more concretely and understand more easily as very simply, "Do no harm."

And so, along with the great strides in human focus, the great advances in science and technologies, and the entrenchment by law of social strictures, protective mechanisms, in these ways Mother Earth will begin to respond to these healing measures, just as she has borne the weight of all the environmentally destructive ones that have been allowed to play havoc, especially over the last couple of hundred years when a different and saner path could have been taken.

In terms of the economy, people everywhere will understand, will come to accept, will bow to the fact that sufficiency is the new productivity, that sustainability is the new lever. The race to blind consumption will begin to lose its appeal, both in terms of political correctness and social justice, but also through a natural waning of grasping and acquisitiveness, competition and greed, when better and higher lights are available for the obtaining.

People will begin to wonder: Do we really need three or four cars? Do we really need dozens if not hundreds of pairs of shoes or items of clothing? Is there not a better way to express our creativity, our individuality and even our social standing?

As human consciousness rises along with that of the planet itself, materialism will fall back and a new history will begin to draw and design itself and materialize before your very eyes. A new picture, a new series of dot connections will emerge that will astound humankind and enliven the energies of goodwill that have been buried under veils of lesser material.

And so there will be a complete change of heart as humankind becomes healthier, more focussed and joyful in a new way of being which will be our honor to help you discover, like children in a candy store to use one of your expressions, when you catch light of this new and possible economy, this new and possible life management system here on Earth.

And although there will be many detractors and enemies, entrenched powers to whom these changes are anathema, although these monolithic blocks remain to be repurposed, some of the most powerful and influential minds in these corridors are even now opening to new possibilities, bowing to them as they realize their worldview no longer serves. These ones, few as yet in number, we salute as heroes, for they will be, like heroes of old, great changers of tides in their own milieux.

We are counting on humanity, we are counting on our collaboration, that is the collaboration between humanity and those of us from the Community of Spiritual Masters who are here, and those of us from the community of Off-Earth Allies who are here, and also those ones from the United Angelic Kingdom who are ever waiting in the wings to enact more overt cooperation. The political will is required, and the strength and goodwill of the people.

Hasten all to respond, for Mother Earth awaits your care and your action for the new economy to flourish and prevail, lifting all to their new potential, whether that be the basics of food and education to allow higher than subsistence living to those particular souls in that particular situation, or for the alleviation of spiritual starvation and bankruptcy in the hearts of so many others in other locales who would be considered rich by any material standard. The soul life of all is the basic rule of economy that truly underlies the time, and all shall be uplifted for this great spiritual tide floats all boats.

Yours in this glorious future,

The Venetian

Master Serapis Bey ...

I would speak about the economy. Now, the economy has many definitions and it has many perspectives. We can talk about economy from the perspective of an elderly couple who is trying to maintain a home that they have lived in for the past 40 or 50 years, be that home a single room in a clapboard house, a single room in a mud brick building or a mansion that has a complex of outbuildings and is properly called an estate.

One can view the economy from the perspective of a world, a nation-state, a sovereignty, a sovereign government that may be the sovereign government of a small population, a single island in the Atlantic or the Pacific Ocean, a multi-island state in the Indian Ocean or a state that spans from shore to shore or from Europe through Asia.

The economy can be of a sovereign state that is interacting with the other sovereign states nearby or states halfway around the globe in international trade. The economy can be making decisions about whether you buy clothing or food, whether you buy medication for your parents or textbooks for your children. The economy can be whether or not you buy a new automobile or a new cabin cruiser, a new sailboat, and how those decisions are based.

The economy affects every single human being on the face of this planet, without exception. Think about that.

Those economic decisions are being made by the most powerful among the human family of Earth. And on what basis do they make these decisions? They decide the critical factors on such things as loans and repayment schedules, they decide such things as when monies due are actually paid and disbursed, or whether they are withheld as a political statement. It is an exercise of power in any instance, it is an exercise of power. What are you worth as a contributing member to the human family of Earth? That is what the economy is saying to individuals and to nation-states.

What are you worth?

There are multifarious criteria that go into that decision and those criteria have to do with the worldview and the perception of the human family of Earth that is resident in the worldview of the ones making the decisions, whether it is who is hired, who gets a job, how much they are paid, how much the trade is worth, whether or not you will even sell to these people, how much you will produce and what you will charge for it. Who gets the profits? How is that determined?

This is the way the economy is spread and corrupted around this planet. And when I say corrupted, I do mean that, for the most well-intentioned people, the most well-intentioned decision-makers must look in their hearts and determine what criteria they are using in their decisions. They must look at how large their network is. Does this network include those who have differing world views and can shed a totally different perspective from their own?

Political decisions are very often indistinguishable from economic decisions and vice versa. It is a statement of value and perspective in response to an existing thoughtform that says, "This must happen or that will be the result." More likely, "This must not happen because that would be the result." "There must be a grant or a concessional loan to this country, but not to that country. And if we give this loan, then this country must comply with these rules." Now, whether or not these rules fit the culture in that country may or may not enter into the decision.

Earth's human family is not homogenized, nor is it intended to be homogenized. But what is intended to be homogenized are the necessities of life. Now, you will quickly list food, clothing and shelter. And this is true. But you see, in the necessities of life there is room for appropriate spiritual growth, not the institutionalizing of spiritual prejudices, religious prejudices, but rather the free spiritual growth of each individual soul. There is a huge difference.

And when that freedom of expression of individual growth of the human soul and an environment that supports that freedom of growth become criteria when determining what wages are given and allocated and who is hired and what tariffs are imposed on trade and what are not, when the mathematical formulas that drive economic decisions include the growth of the human spirit and the creativity of the human soul, then indeed economics will begin to serve the new civilization.

When the criteria imposed upon a "developing nation" include equality, include an environment that supports the freedom and creativity of the human soul, include the world view of the receiving culture as well as the worldview of the donating culture, when there is that level of communication and that heart-to-heart agreement between peoples, recognizing that every one of you in this entire decision-making process is a Spark of God with equal value in the sight of God, then there will be an economy that serves the next civilization.

I can hear you. You think of all the abuses, of all the exceptions. Well, when you expect abuses and you expect exceptions, then that is what you will find. This is not to say that corruption is accepted. It is not. But neither can the removal of corruption be imposed from outside by laws or withholding of monies, withholding of the means of improving the local economy. There must be other means and we will offer our services to help all parties involved negotiate and understand and learn those other means.

There is no one on this planet who will not be forced to rethink their worldview as the new civilization comes about. Why is that? Because the number of people on this planet who truly live in Oneness is very small and it is not of their choice that they do not live in Oneness. There are more who understand Oneness. But understanding Oneness and living in Oneness where it counts, in the economy, now that is a totally different picture. Because no one individual, no one individual, no one individual family can make all the changes necessary in order to have an economy that supports the worldview of Oneness among this planet's human family, a human family that is not homogenized.

But what you can do, those who have the power, is begin to educate yourself and begin, with new eyes, to view those you deal with and understand what you have in common with them. Understand what can be done and how your worldview must change in order to support the new civilization and the economy that tells and enables this couple who has had their home for 40 years how to survive, maintain their home, and understand what it is that even they must do to change. An open-eyes, open-heart, soul-growth-friendly worldview economy will introduce some very interesting criteria to those who are deciding whether or not they are going to buy a car or a new sailboat.

Worldviews will be changing. And when the economy changes, every human being on this planet will be affected – bar none. Because those who have been the have-nots in the most dire of circumstances, the most ignored among the human family, will find that they now have the means of survival and opportunity, and the opportunity to grow as a soul. And those who have been managing the economy and running the economy to their own purpose – including those managing soul-destructive underground economies that thrive on such products as weapons, drugs and human beings – will find that they can no longer limit the boundaries of their concern to themselves and those they care about.

I will leave it there. There is more that can be said, but I will leave it there and ask you to remember that the vibration of planet Earth is changing.

- It is rising.
- Humanity must raise its vibration to keep pace with the changes on planet Earth.
- Humanity raising their vibrations means expanding consciousness.
- Expanding consciousness means seeing things, knowing things, being things that you did not see, know or be in the past.

Thank you.

Serapis Bey

Master Yeshua ...

Much like every other aspect of society on Earth, the religious and spiritual institutions are in dire need of reformation. The old ideologies and world views do not support the new, upcoming approach and challenges. As with all institutions today, they are built on past ideals that are no longer a workable formula. In some religions, people are running away from the accepted view, while in others, people are returning to what they believe is a more traditional, hence correct outlook, though this is not necessarily true.

While there was a time when religions served a clear purpose and united people in faith, much damage has been done in the name of religion. It pains us to recognize this fact about what was supposed to be a way to unite people, for them to share a joint uplifting ritual, maintain a just and general moral system, etc. Religions have been adjusted in such a way by humans that very little of the pure core of spirit remains. However, groups of people with a common ground in faith usually retain a high standard of social empowerment, so the intention behind it is mostly good.

It is expected however that many of these religious institutions start to harm themselves from the inside out, as we can see happening with the many scandals erupting in the traditional Christian churches. Losing their believers would lead to their own dismantling, but we do not want to see these institutions simply disappear or subside because groups of people belonging to a religious community are joined in a compassionate social core that is a resource best not to waste.

We would like to be invited to dialogue on and offer our advice as to how modern-day faith can be brought to a more compassionate core, a core that a community can identify with and work from for its own betterment. This would be a good step forward, a good first step.

It is important to recognize the values that religions have in common rather than poking at their differences. We would encourage dialogue among the various groups too, and have been doing so over the last few years. A multi-denominational community working together to collectively support all is the ideal. What any one of you can do is to walk openly towards other religions and start a dialogue on commonalities. See the people behind the religions, feel their heartbeat, see their love. Focus on the love.

If you are a member of a religious community, you can help bring love and values into it too. It is in your hands to bring about change from the inside out in a positive way rather than a destructive one. Be open to dialogue, open to other opinions. This is not about tolerance but acceptance, about broadening one's perspective to meet the changing times.

When people start to think more independently and feel that there is something else out there, many start to move away from their former religion to a New Age belief or even some ancient spiritual tradition to look for what they are missing. The range of services offered is broad, and there are many, many paths to follow.

Many spiritual institutions resemble the old religions or have been warped by humans over the years. It is truly difficult to weed through this jungle of spiritual and religious orientations and find one – or several – to feel comfortable with. All the more important it is to walk through this jungle with caution and listen to one's own heart, to more than ever find out what is good or bad for oneself and for those surrounding.

We do like to assist on that level too. And we can assure you that organizations of the confused or ill-intended kind, like certain sects, will be perceived by more and more people as warped and thereby find themselves dissipating as an acceptable form of spiritual belief. Indeed, we are living in times when the compassionate, selfless, lending-a-hand kind of institutions will increase, while money-oriented and guru-led ones will disappear. It has to be this way for humanity to grow in consciousness and reach a higher level of self-understanding.

The journey to get closer to one's own spiritual beliefs is a journey from the inside out. The knowledge, the wisdom and the destination of that search are all within oneself, accessible when connecting with one's own soul. This is a clear-cut truth that hopefully very soon everyone on this planet will be able to understand.

Thank you.

Yeshua

Master Djwhal Khul ...

What will become more and more apparent, more and more blatantly obvious even in the time to come, is that now in all the religious and spiritual institutions is a time of surfacing, of coming to the surface, and this entails both good and bad, including many secrets, many things purposely hidden in the past, many things kept silent.

Part of the most obvious of these surfacings are the scandals now rocking some of the oldest institutionalized churches of the world – scandals of abuse, scandals of depraved living behind cloaks of hypocrisy, scandals having to do with money and the misappropriation of funds, scandals of behaviors accepted which are totally and completely opposite to the professed doctrines and ideals of these institutions and yet carried out by their representatives even at the very highest levels.

These things are now surfacing in halls of worship small and large, humble and most glorified. There is no stopping the tide of these revelations, for the time of concealment is past. I have said before that cleavages must surface before they can heal. This is a truth humanity is now facing.

Surfacing too are entrenchment, willfulness and institutionalized cruelty, often at the expense of the weakest and poorest and frailest, most disenfranchised and disempowered members of the societies in which these hardened attitudes – many of them, if not most, feudal, obsessive and very dark – have been allowed to run amok with senseless violence and unfathomable misdirection.

Often, these things have been institutionalized in theocratic societies, rending the whole fabric of these societies with intolerance and abject disregard for all human rights and dignities. These blasphemies too are now coming to the surface and it is more and more obvious even to those who have been under the thumb of this domination for however long that it is no longer acceptable for societies to be run in this way, that it need no longer be tolerated.

And in the many Spring Risings across the world now, the voice of the people is also surfacing despite the blood, the anguish, the turmoil. These power struggles are coming to a head and from our perspective, we hope and we pray that saner heads will very soon prevail – gain the ascendancy and prevail as the tides of indecency, scandal, moral intransigence and subjugation turn. They bring much to the surface to be washed away.

This is my theme, surfacing, cleansing and moving more healthily forward – more healthily and wiser. It is unfortunate, but the surfacing and cleansing is necessary, even if it is clear that abuse reaches crisis proportions as it is exposed, and it is darkest – literally darkest – before the dawn.

And at the same time, surfacing as well are harbingers of the deeper health and soundness of the human heart. People are turning to where their faith takes them, some unfortunately still cantoned in inflexibility, dogmatism and even fanaticism. But others are finding their faith, their deep spiritual faith, in the midst of these great spiritual crises unfolding around them.

Some are finding deeper communion and community in their religious organizations. Some are transforming the very buildings, the churches and temples, into new centers of culture and community service. Buildings of worship, by whatever name, are being opened to active community service and this speaks to a new path where expanded consciousness is beginning to manifest.

Individually, the more existential questions are surfacing for many who are suffering the deep night of the soul or who have been through horrifying human crises because of the social situations in which they live. This is serving as a springboard to bring many face to face with their own religious quests. And through this mechanism, the very essence of the truth, beauty and goodness, all the true nature of Deity will resurface in the hearts, the minds, the souls and the lives of those who are truly engaged in this most radical of rediscoveries.

It is the surfacing of the very best and truest of humanity's vision and in this surfacing you will find us, your elder brothers and sisters, welcoming you at the portal as the door opens to light – to the light of a golden age that is coming and that is yours to build as your birthright in partnership, all of us Sparks of God and all of us one in the light of the Divine. May the very best, the most noble, the truest and deepest Self surface and flourish in each and every one of you and in all of us together, hand in hand.

Thank you.

Djwhal Khul

Arctan ...

The situation of the displaced is an important subject for it affects so many who will further be affected by changes coming to humanity and its home. We see the displaced already in a situation of dire and stressful account, and they will be further put into a dire situation, yet they are perhaps better prepared than most to withstand the upheavals that can be expected to occur.

It challenges us deeply to observe some of the conditions prevalent on Earth that so harshly affect some and are a far-away reality to others. Within the pain there is hope, but that hope must be manifested by fellow human beings to the displaced. When they open their eyes and ears and hearts, this can happen even amidst the coming chaos.

What in your society allows this to be possible we ask, for in our society all are cared for equally and all thrive. We honor the differences in each other and from this perspective feel enriched all around. Our strengths are in our friendships and families. We care for all. (There are subtleties here in "friendships" and "families," but those would be the equivalent words.)

On Earth we see some people ignored and dis-honored in how they live, in how they survive day to day. History provides many examples of such calamity. This is causing an unseen yet powerful imbalance that humanity must address for it will be at the root of many problems you will face and need to solve.

Always there have been the displaced, always there have been those who have turned their backs on those who needed their help to survive. Many a time this has resulted in the extermination of precious life, pointlessly and with callous indifference. That action will be taken to task and examined with different eyes as the times change, as the world changes and comes to terms with the fact that you are one in so many ways.

Can we count on humanity to draw from its reserve to foster those who need extra care and attention? This remains to be seen and experienced, but it will regardless be a topic of serious address. If it is not, the price to pay will be dear.

We ask that you examine your thoughts on this particularly harmful subject.... How do you prevent or participate in such actions? What can you change to remain vigilant to help those who need to find their feet again? You are all in this together. Surely you can understand the need to make certain all are cared for, yes, ALL are cared for.

Thank you.

Arctan
(from M-17)

Philohstan ...

Let me approach the displaced of Earth from a point of view that is often ignored by the official scientific and political community on your planet. What I mean by this is that we all too often gather some facts and try to project into the future how things will turn out. However, we are currently at a time when this is not going to work. It will not work because what has happened in the past is no prediction of what you can expect as you go forward building a new civilization at this time.

Why is this true? It is true because you are having a huge shift in human consciousness and a huge shift in the consciousness of Mother Nature herself. Humanity will now have to depend upon how much information it can gather from those who are willing to guide you on a new path into a new world. I and my friends stand ready to assist you. As you know, I am one of the Off-Earth Allies and we work cooperatively with the Community of Spiritual Masters on this planet.

What humanity needs to know is how these changes that are coming soon will affect the general population. We have already said something about how it will affect the political structure of governments and talked about the cultural changes that are needed. But what about those who simply get caught in the changes and have no understanding of why they are being challenged to simply survive?

The displaced that I speak of are mostly in those areas of the world that we already see as depressed and without an organized network to react quickly to catastrophes. There are many such places on this planet that fit this description, but perhaps the place where the greatest trauma could take place would be those countries that sit upon the great fault lines of the world.

Science knows where these lines are and these fault lines have been rippling for a very long time. Now many of these lines will surely produce a most unusual and unexpected turmoil for humanity. It will create a challenge for the entire planet but most specifically for those populations living along those active ridges which some call the Pacific Rim. It is well known that from Alaska down through Japan and the Pacific coastal areas of Asia and then back up the Western South American coast is very active in Earth movements. We know well the issues of coastal California.

There are other areas that could react to Earth changes but it is along the Pacific basin that the most dangerous area remains. You have in those regions some governments that have been very good at dealing with such Earth shifts that produce earthquakes, tidal waves and also volcanic disturbances. All these Earth disturbances surely are what cause humans to leave their homes and seek shelter in other areas. This always produces a difficult time for governments in their attempt to assist the people in providing them with the necessities of life on a very short notice.

You can prepare in advance to lessen the impact this would have on people but at this point there does not appear to be the human will or knowledge to recognize that something big will soon happen. It is within the power of those spiritual beings on your planet to control some of these Earth changes. However, there will be action within the planet's crust that simply cannot be fully managed for the benefit of humanity, nor should it be fully managed. We are speaking here of huge changes at all levels of the physical planet and it would indeed be strange if nobody expected some physical Earth changes.

I am not going to go into this matter any further except to say that the physical changes are not the only dangers to the population of the planet. The displaced of the world are also those who simply, through no fault of their own, find themselves being uprooted for a large number of reasons. Governments cannot predict all of these reasons but I am sure you well know that there are areas on your planet already living on the edge of chaos on a daily basis. There are those who live on very meager supplies that are required for life. Any disturbance will then surely cause a ripple effect across the entire planet. Nobody will be fully insulated from these traumatic changes. Areas of the world where there will be no Earth changes will still discover that the shock waves of disaster in one location can spread far and wide in very strange patterns.

I am here to simply say that there will be many who will suffer if governments do not begin to cooperate to prepare fully for the coming changes. Yes, you do have the issue of political, economic and cultural changes, but there is also the challenge of physical changes and that too must be on the agenda for government leaders to ponder.

Philohstan
(from the constellation Aquila)

Master Hilarion ...

There will not be a phase or area that remains untouched by upheaval as the world shifts to its next stage in evolution. The total transformation will take many years, decades even, and will touch each soul in different ways depending on where one is in their existence mentally, physically, spiritually and emotionally. Just how each person will receive the various changes is up to them and dependent, of course, on their receptive sensitivity.

We truly cannot say what will happen to an individual, but I can express some general outlying changes to expect and be prepared for. Even if a change does not affect an individual, it may very well affect someone close to them and of course the whole of humanity is one.... Thus as one is affected, thus is the whole.

We do not wish to alarm or unsettle anyone. We merely wish to pass forward some information you can use to your benefit in regards to what to expect in the coming times.

The Great Mother is a great spirit but she too must move forward like any other being. Her path is a difficult one, thus so it is for those who call her home. Many stresses alay any given day, any given life.... Day after day, yes, this is true. We see from our position how much daily stress individuals tolerate and manage. What someone may manage now may not be what they can manage later when the transformations are sharper, greater or more severe.

All remains to be seen.

We ask that each individual prepare themselves as best they are capable. In this we mean and advise each and every one to find their peace in every phase of themselves and their lives ... whether with family and friends, lovers and mates, at work and at home. Find your place in each activity where you can build peaceful relationships with others or yourselves and strive to spread this to others.

You will find this very useful and you will be surprised by the outcomes when you take a position of peace with someone or something. Allow for this to come into your life in any way imaginable. The benefits will soon manifest. I cannot emphasize this strongly enough.

When changes or upheavals come into place, the least amount of chaos or confusion will allow the transformation to occur with the least amount of stress incurred to your lives. As with anything you may encounter in your daily life now, to proceed with a lightness of being makes for a smoother road ahead.

You will experience changes in Mother Earth herself, in political direction and power, in economic ideology and centers of power, in religious ideology and isolationism, in citizen activism and unrest. De facto civil wars will not be limited to the troubled countries of today, nor will they all be fought with military weapons and tactics. All of this you can be prepared for and cope with if you consider the advice I have given.

We will be at your side at all times, ready to advise and help as permitted, but this is a tool we feel will aid you far more than anything. Understand that our hearts lay with you and we hope to see your recovery be one of loving stature and peaceful domain.

Hilarion

Ken'u ...

Let me begin by saying a few words about upheaval and what kind of upheaval you can expect.

It is part of the evolution of this planet that there will be a huge upheaval of many events before humanity can transition completely into a new world which you are moving toward. It is a necessary cleansing. Upheaval therefore speaks of the many coming traumas that will present themselves to humanity. It is your job to deal with these and move beyond them into building new civilizations.

The point that I am making here is that everything on this planet is in some state of upheaval now. Certainly this is true of the dense physical but it is also true of those areas that humanity does not think of as the dense physical world. Therefore, what does this mean for you? Can you learn quickly how to deal with these upheavals in your lives and move forward rapidly so that you can leave this traumatic stage of transition behind you? After all, what you are seeking is a way to avoid as much upheaval as possible, with as little trauma as possible.

You can only do this if you understand that there are some barriers in your path and you must find a way to leap over these barriers, go through the barriers or somehow find a way around the barriers that block your path. If you stop and see these barriers as something too big to deal with, then you will encounter a long period of upheavals that will present themselves to you as trauma and disasters. Instead, you should see this as a wake-up call and quickly learn how to move beyond the problems you are faced with.

I would say that what you can expect will be something akin to what happens when governments transition from one system, one mythology and one culture into another. In history, you learned about revolutions when things changed very violently and radically. People had to learn how to live with that transition. Today, it is a bit different since the transition is broader and much larger and more complex. There is much that humanity needs to learn about how to deal with these transitions.

Where can you expect these upheavals? Clearly you may see it first appear in Western Europe. This is because Europe has been experimenting with a new economic/political transition of their own and they will soon discover that their plan cannot meet the challenges that they will face in the coming months and years. Why is this true? It is true because you are going into a new period where all the old models will no longer work. This includes the relatively new model in Europe which will demonstrate that it too models the old thinking that will not suffice to solve your problems.

All humanity is now beginning to see in the economic world layers upon layers of complexities that the average person cannot possibly understand. And thus humanity will need our insights and foresight to help solve these problems. When these layers begin to peel away, then it will become obvious to everyone what is happening. Only then will all humanity see through the economic chaos and understand that the old is dying. It is in Western Europe and in the United States that this global economic system was created and where the power structure of that old system remains fully in charge. Therefore, we can see that the upheavals that will spell out the coming traumatic transition will begin where these economic power structures are strongest and where the changes therefore will be the most traumatic.

This is all quite obvious if you understand the network of international business and the international banking system. The global system has been linked in ways that are unimaginable to the average person. This linkage was designed to prevent global economic disaster but in fact what it is going to do is create a sudden collapse in the global system that will affect all on the planet. Some areas will be more affected than others but nevertheless, the needed economic changes will not come until the old system is seen by all to be insufficient for where this planet must go.

You are not so very far away from experiencing this sudden collapse in holding together this old network of global trade and global banking. It certainly will not be good for the United States but they will have the benefit of seeing the collapse begin first in Western Europe and quickly spread to other banking centers. This will look like a very dark scenario to many and indeed it will be a dark scenario for some or perhaps best to say many. However, it is the beginning of a new age of human enlightenment and it is the beginning of something new that will attract you and hold your attention because you know that it can and will be better than the old way in which you have done business for so long.

The question is, how long will humanity become mired in the transition? Will it be swift or will it be slow and torturous?

My friends, I tell you that is your choice. We, the Masters and Off-Earth Allies, are here to help you transition as quickly as possible and enter this new and glorious world.

Thank you.

Ken'u*
(from the constellation Lyra)

* MasterSpeak provides the Community of Spiritual Masters and our Off-Earth Allies a forum for discussion. While each individual has their own perspective, they never fail to work together for the benefit of humanity. For more information about MasterSpeak, visit WeSeekToServe.com. ©2014 WeSeekToServe Production Team